

$2,300,000 Garner Relief Measure Passed By House

Parisgrafs LOCALLY SPEAKING

"In every work that he began he did it with all his heart—and prospered."

ONE'S capacity for the finer things of life limits enjoyment of living. It is a mistaken idea to believe that wealth within itself enables one to buy happiness. All the money in the world could not make a mule appreciate whipped cream with his oats. Happiness depends upon the individual's capacity to appreciate the commonplace.

Recently a Parisian told of a happy visit he had with the trees in Paris. "Did you know," said he, "I knew all along that we had plenty of trees in Paris but I did not realize how many different kinds of trees we have and how beautiful they are until I visited these trees last Sunday afternoon."

"Yes sir," he continued, "I got in my car alone and throttled down the engine and just let the old boat sort of Cadillac along slowly I looked at the trees carefully I always loved trees and it was not hard to enter into the spirit of this newly discovered enjoyment. Up one street and down the other I traveled in the old car, seeing none of the people who passed and thinking only about trees and how lovely they are."

"Ordinarily I try to speak to everybody I see when I'm out driving; but this time I was visiting with the trees. I transferred myself from association with people in order that I might be with the trees. To each tree I passed I almost spoke audibly 'You lovely lovely thing, how do you do.' I looked upon them as friends of mine. I studied the individuality of trees, much as I often do with people. And strange to say, it appeared to me that each tree had its own charm—its own personality. If a tree can have a personality."

Hundreds of times I have driven down certain streets in Paris, but not until Sunday afternoon did I know that there were any trees out there in Paris. I was amazed to find some tall poplars, growing with other trees within a stone's throw of my own home. In a back alley a few blocks away I found a line of beautiful dwarf catalpa trees, young, strong, thrifty, marvelous trees. I had been that way before but never paid any attention to the trees.

"Please do not think me foolishly sentimental, for I mean it. I have found a lot of new friends right here at home and they are going to add more to my enjoyment of life from now on than they ever have before. They bow and wave at me these friendly trees. I know them better now, and I'll visit with them more often."

"And you know," he said "We have many different families of trees in Paris. Some of them came along with the young folks and this age, but many of them, strange as it may seem, are pioneers. I have heard of people who could 'grow old gracefully', but none can equal the trees in this respect."

"Of course it's not news to most people, but I had never stopped to consider how many different kinds of trees we have here in Paris. I did not find them all, I know, but I found more than I thought we really had—perhaps fifty different kinds. If any one else knows all the names of our Paris trees, I wish Parisgrafs would invite readers to send names. Just tell them to address the letter 'Trees', in care of your paper."

WILL ROGERS
says:

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., June 6. —We never realized that elections were so near till we see by the papers this morning that each political party has "some plan of relieving the unemployed." They have been unemployed for three years, and nobody paid any attention to 'em, but now both parties have discovered that while they are not working, there is nothing in the constitution to prevent them from voting.

So Democratic Campaign Leader "Hooley" and Republican Leader "Baloney" say: "We have to do something about this. Miss Secretary, Reach in the bag and get out some of those old campaign promises. We will put 'em off and remember, no matter what the other side promises, see their promise and raise 'em two more."

CAPITOL CHEERS BONUS SEEKERS IN FIRST MARCH

Dragged Group of 5,000 Vets Stages Orderly Parade in Washington

WASHINGTON, June 7. (P)—An army of war veterans swung into martial step Tuesday night and tramped up historic Pennsylvania avenue to give emphasis to their demand for full payment immediately of the bonus. Applause welcomed the marchers.

They were a bedraggled lot. Their ragged, soiled shirts, worn shoes and baggy trousers contrasted sharply with the natty uniforms they wore in the days of the World War. A handful had dug out and pressed for the hundredth time the last uniform the army gave them.

Police commanded by Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford patrolled the lines, carefully watching as crowds along the streets applauded or commented from behind stretched metal lines.

Glassford estimated between 5,000 and 7,000 marchers in the lines four abreast.

They were followed by automobiles and trucks carrying those who were too ill, too disabled or too exhausted after arriving to join in the hour and a half's march.

Twilight fell as the marchers turned into the avenue. Those who gathered to watch them pass were estimated by Glassford to total 100,000.

11 DEAD, 40 HURT AND 12 MISSING AS BLAST RESULT

Cleveland Apartment Hotel Explosion Early Tuesday Traps 150

PROPERTY LOSS MAY APPROACH MILLION

Will Be Days Before Death List Is Complete, Say Searchers

CLEVELAND, O., June 7. (P)—A dozen persons were missing Tuesday night in the wake of a disastrous explosion and fire that early Tuesday destroyed the Ellington apartment hotel with an accompanying loss of eleven lives and injuries to two score.

Still Sock Dead

As firemen dug into the piles of blackened brick and masonry, they expressed belief it would be several days before the death toll is definitely established.

The six-story frame-brick building, a landmark in downtown Cleveland at East Ninth and Superior since the nineties, was shattered by a mysterious explosion shortly after midnight and hurled streams of flame nearly 100 feet above the top of the building, which trapped more than 150 residents in their rooms.

Four bodies were soon removed from the building, but firemen and police located seven others wedged in the debris. Tottering walls and the masses of ruins makes it problematical when they will be reached.

Three Investigations

Three separate investigations were under way into the origin of the blast, so terrific that it shook the business district and hurled streams of flame nearly 100 feet above the top of the building. It was followed by other and smaller blasts.

One theory was that leaking gas was responsible. Police arson squads combed the ruins found several cans of alcohol in the basement and announced the discovery warranted a grand jury investigation in the fire.

Estimates of the loss ranged from $500,000 to $1,000,000.

JUNE 30 FINAL DATE FOR '31 TAX PAYMENT

1931 Taxes Unpaid By July 1 Get 10 Per Cent Penalty

Tax Collector Lee Yancey said Tuesday, all 1931 taxes not paid before July 1, 1932 will become delinquent and a 10 per cent penalty will be charged in addition to an interest charge of six per cent from the date of delinquency until paid.

Mr. Yancey urges all taxpayers who have not paid the last part of their 1931 taxes to bring the receipts issued for the first payment when paying the last payment. This receipt is necessary in order that a receipt for the full amount may be issued.

A number of taxpayers have made final payments already and others are expected from now until the last of the month.

FEDERAL JUDGE HAS ASKED INSULL AUDIT

Investigation of Investment Trust Ordered by Chicago Jurist

CHICAGO, June 7. (P)—Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley announced Tuesday he had ordered a complete audit and history—"showing every transaction, every payment of money, and every transfer of stock"—of Insull Utility Investments, Inc.

The company referred to is a half billion dollar investment trust which Samuel Insull organized to deal in securities of its operating concerns and thus insure Insull control of the companies.

"If personal liabilities on the part of directors and officers of the company are disclosed," the federal judge said, "then civil action should be undertaken to recover from them such funds as could be obtained."

SMITH BACKERS CONCENTRATE ON CHAIRMAN CHOICE

Will Fight to Place Shouse In Chair at Chicago Convention

NEW YORK, June 7. (P)—Alfred E. Smith's political allies decided Tuesday to hinge their hopes of nominating the "happy warrior" on a furious fight over the selection of a permanent chairman of the Democratic national convention.

This was learned at conclusion of a strategy meeting of Smith's "war board," which spent four hours Tuesday behind closed doors in a smoke-filled skyscraper office.

"It will be a fight to the last ditch," said the spokesman of the group, Thomas F. Spillacy, Smith leader in Connecticut, as he outlined plans for a united battle to elect J. P. Shouse, executive chairman of the Democratic national committee, as presiding officer of the convention.

He interred the meeting had dealt with little else.

Machine Gun Bullets Aggravate Carre Path To Freedom For "Pretty Boy" Floyd As Posse Surrounds House

ADA, Okla., June 7. (P)—Ripping their way with machine gun fire through a posse which had surrounded them at a farmhouse near Stonewall, two men identified by officers as Charles "Pretty Boy" Floyd, much-sought Oklahoma outlaw, and his lieutenant, George Birdwell, escaped Tuesday night in an automobile.

No one was wounded.

The pair fled in a shower of bullets from the posse. Officers expressed belief the two men were bullet proof vests and other armor.

The officers, led by O. P. Ray, superintendent of the state bureau of criminal investigation, and Sheriff L. E. Franklin of Pontotoc county, were reported in close pursuit.

Hearing that Floyd planned to hide in the farmhouse preparatory to robbing the Stonewall bank on Wednesday, Sheriff Franklin notified state operatives and the posse surrounded the house.

Opening Of Outing And Hot Weather Seasons Celebrated Simultaneously

That Great American Institution, the park outing, burst forth in full bloom almost simultaneously with the beginning of the palm leaf fan and heat prostration season in Paris Tuesday night.

The occasion was the formal opening of Wade Park—"use of pool free to all who bring suits." Everybody came. Cars milled like stampeded cattle, blating and squealing. Paint transferred from one fender to another, as cars on the east side decided to go to the west side, and vice versa.

Children drank pop and ate popcorn, whirled about the merry-go-round, and got dizzy on the swings. Children got lost and cried, and heads of families lost the keys to the family car.

Candidates on Dem Ballot For Other State Offices Are Announced

DALLAS, Texas, June 7. (P)—The field of potential candidates in the race for the Democratic nomination for governor was boosted to eleven Tuesday by last minute filing of petitions naming W. K. Hopkins, of Gonzales and Wright Morrow of Houston.

Received Tuesday

The Morrow petition, registered in the mails late Monday night, was received at the Dallas office of Albert Sidney Johnson, secretary of the state Democratic executive committee. It bore the signatures of 27 political leaders from various parts of the state.

Hopkins was placed in nomination by a group of 36 supporters from Bexar county who filed their petition at Houston with W. O. Huggins, chairman of the state Democratic executive committee.

They urged voters drop personal differences and unite for Senator Hopkins in an effort to prevent "bitterness, strife and turmoil," they said would follow the campaign between Governor R. S. Sterling and Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson.

Neither Has Talked

Neither Morrow nor Hopkins has said as yet whether he will participate in the race, but indications are strong that they will. (Continued on Page Five)

SENATE THROWS OUT VETERANS ECONOMY

Section of Bill Calling for Curtailing Expenses Discarded

WASHINGTON, June 7. (P)—By an overwhelming vote the senate late Tuesday tossed out of the national economy bill all provisions for curtailing expenditures for war veterans.

The action shot a $48,000,000 hole in the measure and cut its total estimated saving to $156,000,000. The exemption of salaries below $1,000 from pay cuts had reduced the saving $4,000,000.

As reported to the senate by its bi-partisan economy committee, the bill carried a saving of $235,000,000 as described as necessary to help the new tax bill balance the budget.

The veterans sections calling for a saving of $48,714,000 were thrown out bodily by a 63 to 14 vote after members of the committee who had advocated them told the senate they believed it would not be practicable to put them through at this time. The decision duplicated the action of the house.

BONHAM BAND TAX REPEALED TAX

Ordinance Voted Two Years Ago Defeated 291 To 216

Special to The News

BONHAM, June 7.—Although little more than half the qualified voters cast ballots in a city election here Tuesday, the city band tax of five cents on the one hundred dollar valuation, was repealed by a vote of 291 to 216.

The band tax, which represents a sum of about $1,500 annually was voted in 1930.

The election held Tuesday was called upon petition of about 250 taxpayers of the city at a meeting of the city council some time ago. The election was ordered at the May meeting of the council. There are over 950 qualified voters in the city but only 507 voted Tuesday.

The band tax will be collected for the present year, but will not be assessed next year.

Collision on Lamar

GOP ATTEMPT TO RAILROAD HOOVER PLAN OVERRULED

Speaker's Bill Sent to Senate By 216 to 182 Vote

21 REPUBLICANS ACCORD SUPPORT

Ten Democrats Bolt Party To Vote Against Garner Measure

WASHINGTON, June 7. (P)—Quickly overriding a Republican attempt to obtain sanction of President Hoover's relief program, the Democratic house Tuesday approved the $2,300,000,000 Garner plan for helping the unemployed.

Bound by the caucus rule and aided by insurgent Republicans, the Democrats sent the speakers' bill intact to the senate by a vote of 216 to 182.

Adverse Motion Killed

Action came after a motion by Representative Hawley (R., Ore.) to send the bill back to committee with instructions to adopt the administration proposals was defeated 218 to 183.

Ten Democrats bolted their party on the final vote while 21 Republicans and the lone farmer-laborite—Kvale of Minnesota—cast their votes for the Garner program. An omnibus amendment proposed by majority leader Rainey to perfect the measure and permit the reconstruction finance corporation to lend funds to corporate bodies for the erection of dwellings was approved.

Some Provisions

As the measure went to the senate it provided $100,000,000 to be distributed by President Hoover for direct relief, an increase to $2,000,000,000 in the reconstruction corporation's capital, and a $1,200,000,000 public building and waterway construction program to provide employment.

Drastic legislative procedure to insure favorable action on the $2,300,000,000 Garner plan was clapped. (Continued on Page Five.)

DISCORD REPORTED IN CHILEAN JUNTA

Leaders Delay Decisions in Hope Of Securing Accord

SANTIAGO, Chile, June 7. (P)—Discord was reported Tuesday to have broken out among the members of the junta which seized the government Saturday and dedicated Chile to socialism.

Rumors were widespread that Carlos Davila, former Chilean ambassador to Washington and head of the junta, had threatened to resign, but a member of his family informed the Associated Press these reports were "utterly untrue."

This, however, was certain: leaders of the revolutionary government were holding up their decisions on several pressing problems, including the issue of suppressing religious orders, in the hope of reaching complete internal accord before they took any drastic action.

The WEATHER

At the Lamar

The laugh hit of last year's season on the New York stage comes to the Lamar theater beginning with an owl show Saturday night and playing through Monday, in Samuel Goldwyn's United Artists version of "The Greeks Had a Word for Them." This comedy about three chorus girls on the loose was written by Zoe Akins, eminent playwright.

Ina Claire, Joan Blondell and Madge Evans play the three merry maids of Broadway whose adventures in pursuit of millionaires are the theme of the story. David Manners and Phillips Smalley are also in the cast, and Lowell Sherman both directed and acted in the picture.

Leo Carrillo is the sort of screen mad man you'd like to meet, even on the darkest street corner.

Swashbuckling by nature, ever ready to play pranks or laugh at his own expense, he is really Hollywood's gayest caballero.

This brilliant stage and screen star, who supports Dolores Del Rio in RKO-Radio Pictures' "Girl of the Rio," opening tomorrow at the Lamar theater, has a unique family history.

He is a direct descendant of the Spanish Dons who ruled primitive California before the coming of the Anglo-Saxons. His grandfather was the first provisional governor of the state of California. His father was mayor of Santa Monica for fifteen years.

His first professional work came about in a peculiar way. As Leo puts it: "I became a vaudeville performer by being sick at slipping through a revolving door leading to a booking agent's office."

He whirled the trick door so fast the only other applicant had to wait until it stopped. In the meantime Leo had the job.

From vaudeville, where he was unusually successful, he turned to Broadway and appeared in a great number of plays for many years before the films reached out for him.

His most ardent ambition is to repossess as much of his ancestors' 5,000,000 acres of Southern California land as possible.

BUILD UP TO PREVENT PAINS

HOW a Missouri woman was benefited by taking Cardui is described below by Mrs. Joe Schumer, of Cape Girardeau: "I suffered with irregularity. For weeks at a time I was so weak I could not work. I had aches in my back and head and legs—I ached all over. I would get dizzy and feel faint. I had read about Cardui, so I got some and took it. I improved a great deal. After I had taken four bottles, I felt like a different person."

Former Paris Boy Written About In City Hall Series

One of the recent series of articles entitled "City Hall Folks" by V. H. Torrance in a Dallas paper is devoted to G. C. Haraway, technical engineer in the supervisor's office, son of Mrs. A. M. Haraway of Paris. The editor's note says: "It is quite natural that the light or daily publicity should be rather exclusively about the council, the city manager and a staff of eight or ten department heads, but back in the shadows are several hundred city employees—the people who carry out the orders and do the actual work. They are just folks but real folks and they are just as interesting to know and to read about as those in the more rarefied atmosphere."

The article goes on to define Haraway's duties in testing the gas supplied by the public utilities company to see that it meets requirements of the city's franchise. "He also knows electricity" the writer says. "A few years ago Haraway took a year's leave at his own expense and studied these things. When the Dallas Power and Light company begins installing a new dynamo, or any other machinery, Haraway goes down and has a look . . . In fact Haraway is the man who keeps his eye on all utility construction work . . . His work is too technical to be appreciated generally, but it is appreciated in the supervisor's office and among the utilities, where they know him as a highly technical engineer."

What makes new Mobiloil so good for your car?

IN Timbuctoo or the Texas Panhandle, new Mobiloil is the world's largest selling motor oil.

The reasons for this landslide in favor of new Mobiloil are easily understood when you know the facts about motor oil.

The perfect motor oil stands up and retains its lubricating efficiency at a traffic crawl or under hours of high-speed summer driving. It preserves power and reduces gasoline consumption by maintaining perfect piston seal. It is double de-waxed, free of gum, sludge and harmful carbon. New Mobiloil checks with all of these.

New Mobiloil is an up-to-the-minute oil made to withstand the extreme temperature ranges and terrific punishment of today's high-speed, high-compression motors. It saves your motor. It saves fuel. It increases power. It adds thousands of miles to the life of your car. Point for point, new Mobiloil is the most economical motor protection you can buy at any price.

Rabbit Roping Ruckus at Odessa Proves "Cruelty to Cowboys"

When the American Legion Post at Odessa, Texas, decided to include a Rabbit Roping contest in their recent rodeo, they didn't realize what a ruckus they were starting. Humane societies all over the country complained. The Legion was restrained from having the contest, but the Legion won a writ of injunction restraining the sheriff from stopping them when Judge Henry Webb ruled the jack-rabbit a rodent, on which humane laws do not apply. But when the contest was held, it turned out to be cruelty to cowboys and not to animals, because only 7 of the 105 cowboys entered could catch a rabbit, and no rabbits were hurt. The above two photos show the champion, Arden Ross, sheriff of Loving county, last stronghold of the Old West. Ross roped his rabbit in nine seconds, a record. One photo shows him in action, the other with his rabbit.

"God the Only Cause and Creator" was the lesson-sermon subject in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday.

The golden text was from Revelation 4:11. "Thou art worthy, O Lord, to receive glory and honor and power: for thou hast created all things, and for thy pleasure they are and were created."

Included in the service were these passages from the Bible (John 1:1, 3): "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. All things were made by him; and without him was not anything made that was made."

As a part of the lesson-sermon, these citations from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, were also read (pages 502, 503):

"The creative principle—life, truth and love—is God. The universe reflects God. There is but one creator and one creation. This creation consists of the unfolding of spiritual ideas and their identities, which are embraced in the infinite mind and forever reflected."

Claims Business Tactics Used in Conducting His Office

GRANBURY, Tex., June 7. (AP)—Governor R. S. Sterling reviewed his record in office Tuesday in a speech to several thousand citizens attending the dedication of the new Brazos river bridge here.

He said that during his administration the state had balanced its budget without raising taxes and that the governor's office had been conducted on a business basis.

Pierce B. Ward of Cleburne dedicated the bridge to the memory of Robert Patton Crockett, son of Davy Crockett. Robert Crockett lived in Granbury and helped build the first bridge ever constructed in West Texas. His children, Ashley Crockett and Mrs. Tom Hiner of Granbury, were present at Tuesday's ceremonies.

ped onto the house by the Democrats 205 to 159 after a bitter struggle. Eight Democrats bolted the party's caucus but 12 Republicans and one farmer-laborite swung to the majority support.

Mayor Petition
A group of mayors headed by Frank Murphy, Detroit, representing 31 important cities, placed before vice president Curtis and speaker Garner and party leaders in both houses petitions urging a $5,000,000,000 bond issue for federal aid. These were read to both branches.

Secretary Mills advocated the president's proposal to expand Reconstruction Finance Corporation capital $1,500,000,000 before senate banking committee and clashed with Senator Wagner (D, N.Y.) and others over merits of the Democrats' proposed public building program, charging it would be a drain on the treasury.

Section Approved
Earlier the senate banking committee approved the $300,000,000 section of the Democratic relief bill for loans to states to prevent destruction, and continued consideration on the president's proposal to set up a system of home loan discount banks to ease credit on long term securities.

On the house side the rules committee voted to give the home loan discount bill preferred status and chairman Pou predicted house action before adjournment.

The Fulmer measure to turn over to the Red Cross an additional 40,000,000 bushels of, farm board wheat and 500,000 bales of cotton was approved by the house agricultural committee.

Secretary Mills said the way to "get relief is to start the private economic machine turning."

Bad "Case of Nerve"
"There is nothing wrong with the United States today except the worst case of nerves in history," he said. "We have got to restore confidence, but when you talk of breaking the depression with $300,000,000 for public works it is like telling a little boy to bring the Washington monument here."

Led by Representative Snell of New York, the Republican leader, the administration followers sought to throw the Garner bill open to amendment by fighting the procedure they termed "gag rule" and the measure they called "pork barrel."

Here Are Bolters
The Democrats who bolted their party caucus which bound them to vote for the procedure and the Garner measure were:

Representatives Howard, Norton, Shallenberger, and Morehead, all of Nebraska; Parsons, Illinois; Cannon, Lazier, and Romque of Missouri. Representative Polk (D, O.) voted present.

The Republicans who voted with the Democrats were: Adkins, Illinois; Amle, Schneider, Withrow and Boileau of Wisconsin; Butler, Oregon; James, Michigan; Pittenger, Minnesota; Sinclair, North Dakota; Swing, California; Taylor, Tennessee and La Guardia, New York.

Representative Kvale, Farmer-Labor, Minnesota, also voted with the Democrats.

LURE OF THE UNKNOWN

WANDERLUST is wanderlust. Lust for strange roads is lust for the unknown things to be seen along them and at their ends. Individuals of all ages and generations have known it—have felt it dragging them from the beaten tracks to trails that lead into uncharted regions. Some never return. Some do, in rags, broken, worn, weary, with stories of monsters and evil things encountered and with scars to prove their adventures. A few return in fine raiment, enriched, with wondrous tales of good things found and with evidence that bears them out. Thus do the terrors and treasures of the unknown become evident.

Sometimes the lust gets into the mind and leads toward strange theories and after strange objectives, some of them good, some of them bad. Sometimes the lure of the unknown draws toward strange political, moral, social, economic or metaphysical "isms"—some of which prove sound, and safe, but most of them unsound and deadly dangerous. Sometimes it gets into youth and tempts it toward odd moral conceits and fancies—some harmless, some destructive. Many wanderers perish on their journey along strange mental lines. Others return sadder and wiser.

A large number of grown-up "isms" chasers are today wandering after strange notions. And many of the younger generations are in pursuit of strange fancies that may come true, hunting new pleasure by new paths into new haunts. May all return as hopeful and confident as they set forth.

HEALTH RECORDS CONTINUE

THE record low death rate of 1931 will be beaten in 1932 if the experience of the last nine months matches that of the first quarter, according to figures of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. The death rate among the company's industrial policy holders in the first quarter of 1932 was 9.04 to each 1,000 as against 10.2 last year.

A new national low in mortality rates was set in 1931 and was attributed to the high standards of Federal, State and municipal health services, continuous advances in medical science, and the comprehensive work of relief agencies that during the depression have ministered to those in need. Pneumonia and influenza mortality has been reduced sharply and this year during the first quarter the automobile death rate has for the first time shown no increase.

The insurance company notes that in the 4-week period ending April 23 there was a slight increase over the mortality rate for the same period of 1931. Graphs fluctuate somewhat throughout the year, however, and if public health services continue their high standards for the remainder of the year and are not hampered by restrictions in necessary funds 1932 will be the third of three difficult years to make a record for health and low mortality.

Backward Glances

By A. W. Neville

BEFORE we had the Eighteenth amendment to argue about, one of the great bones of contention, in Paris as elsewhere, was the Sunday closing law, a part of the people looking on it as a curtailment of their liberties and others holding that it was necessary to orderly government to suspend activities on that day.

When saloons were licensed it was always unlawful for them to be open on Sundays, but this law, as most others, meant little to the saloon keepers. Most of them had a side door through which customers could enter and be served, and though they were frequently arrested they were seldom convicted.

It was lawful, when I came to Paris fifty years ago, as it is now, for drug stores to sell medicines on Sunday, but as the drug stores handled many other things besides medicines they were selling anything in the house that a customer wanted. Not much objection was made to this except at intervals there would be a wave of reform and then the drug stores would refuse for a Sunday or two to sell anything except physic. One of these reform waves came thirty-odd years ago and at that time the drug stores entered into an agreement which they published, that they would close except from 8 to 10 on Sunday mornings and 3 to 6 in the afternoon. This was to leave the church service hours free for the store employees and the Sunday loafers, though I do not think many of them attended church as a result. This agreement was signed by F. C. Robinson & Co., R. J. Murphy, R. T. Smoot, Longmire, Barry & Co., Greiner & Kelly, Hutcherson & Elliott and the Lone Star Drug Co., and it stated that only medicines would be sold during the open hours.

Custom also for a long time allowed the barber shops to be open Sunday morning until 9 o'clock, as grocery stores and markets are now permitted. Many young men then never thought of getting shaved until Sunday morning—in fact, those who were employed in stores scarcely had time to go to the barbershop Saturday night, for many of the stores were kept open as long as there was a prospective customer. Some of the shops gradually edged over the time limit however, and in 1889 the city council passed an ordinance forbidding the shops to open at all on Sunday. Most of the barbers were very glad to have this law, as they preferred to rest on Sunday and they had been keeping open only because others did so and they had to hold their trade, and consequently there were few infractions of it.

A Story of Mystery and Love in The South Seas

CHAPTER 20

For a moment Tom said nothing as he studied the blue waters of the lagoon, visible through the wide doors and long windows. Brilliantly colored tropical birds called to each other as they flew. Suddenly Larry found our eyes on him. Without a word he sat down.

"All right, then—we are six right now," Tom said. "I think we all agree that what started out just as a lark has taken a surprisingly grave turn, and that events have convinced us that a black pearl actually exists. It's serious business now."

"Plenty serious," Larry agreed putting down his glass and lighting a cigarette.

"Here is what we have," Tom continued. "If Paua is off this island it's a 100 to 1 shot that she is with Livingston, and whether she went willingly or was kidnapped we don't know."

"Listen to this and let it soak in, all of you!" Holmes barked. "I happen to know she detests Livingston. She has known him a long time—but she finally caught up with this waxy guy. She wouldn't walk across the floor with him—"

"I watched her dancing with him," I interjected.

"Yeah?" Larry snapped whirling on me. "Well, that was before she got his number."

"Did she tell you what 'burned' her?" I one asked.

"She simply said he was a filthy double-crosser, and that he sneaked his schooner out here while she was in the States, and lay over Tarea for several days while he searched the island."

Tom turned to Larry: "Was that the only reason she gave you for going 'sour' on Livingston?"

"Yes. But what's all this deep stuff I should know about," he asked impatiently.

"Give him a load of it, Tom," I suggested, quietly. "He'll take it on the button now."

"I think we know what the real trouble is between Livingston and the girl," Tom announced.

Larry looked up sharply at the note in his voice.

"Livingston won't marry her because she is part Kanaka, and to put it bluntly, he doesn't want 'breeds' for children."

Strange how various things flash in your memory. I recall thinking that the silence which followed Tom's voice was tangible. I wanted to shout and chatter it as you would shatter an ice jam with a blast of dynamite. Four of us were absolutely powerless to tear our eyes from Larry, who never moved a muscle. He seemed a thing of stone.

It may have been seconds, or it may have been minutes. I'll never know. Time has a way of being elastic on occasion, and one can live years in the space of minutes. Then he moved.

"I would love her," he said simply. "If her skin was green."

I don't know—we never talked about it later among ourselves—but I think there was a silent cheer from deep inside each of us, for that declaration. Looking at him I saw that his face was pale and his eyes haggard.

Larry turned to Tom: "Get on with the facts I should know." His voice sounded strange, like a file on hard steel.

Tom realized that he had just taken a blow which had shaken him thoroughly. Tom's voice was velvet now as he came softly in on another tack.

"Some years ago there was a bit of unpleasantness with the Imperial German government. During that time we were in uniform," he said indicating me with a nod. "In the branches of the service in which we were enlisted we learned to read the International radio code as well as something of code work and signalling."

"The upshot of all this, I broke in, 'is that Tom can read code as fast as it can be sent. There have been a lot of unusual messages go out from here. Utato has been 'teaching' Tom the code—"

"I know that," Larry said.

"Which gave Tom the opportunity to hang around the tower, where he got pretty much everything. We know that Livingston has a radio set on his boat, and that while Utato has been drawing pay from Paua, he is in reality Livingston's man. Utato has kept Livingston posted on everything of importance that has happened here—"

Tom said: "Livingston wants that log; Paua wants the log—which was evidently the reason for her bringing us here. The log is gone. Paua is gone."

"What we haven't been able to definitely determine is just where Paua fits in this scheme of things," I stated.

Then we told him of the various messages, beginning with the first one from the Sequela announcing our presence on board; of the peculiar use of the word 'we' and ending with Utato's report of having taken the log, and the suggestion that Livingston come.

"Well, that 'we' isn't Paua, who ever it is," Larry declared with a snap. I noticed that the color had returned to his face and that he was getting his fight back.

"But what I want to know," he added, "is why I wasn't told that Livingston had been sent for. The girl is in danger and you all sit around like a herd of chumps and let this guy slip in here and grab her right under our noses. You would think a collection of two-year-olds would know—"

"Wait a minute, Larry, before you get all blustered up," I suggested. "If we had thought for a minute that she was in any physical danger, you know what we would have done—"

"Why haven't I been told of these things as they broke, instead of being kept in the dark. Am I one of the family or am I a step-child—"

"Because," I retorted "you seemed to be having a pretty good time as it was. We didn't want to run around whispering a lot of half-baked suspicions, getting you all steamed up. Sometimes the best way to learn things is to play 'Mickey-the-dunce,' and—"

"You see what your 'watchful waiting' got up, don't you?" he asked with a half sneer.

His tone was taking on a nasty tinge, but I don't think there was any resentment in any of the four of us. We knew he was laboring under pressure. We humans have to make allowances for the frailties of other humans at times.

Now he stood up and faced us and there was pugnacity in every line. I remember thinking at the time that he reminded me of a big English bull dog. He was used to have way back in Milton, Wisconsin. Strange how thoughts like that will flip through one's mind.

"I want it understood that from now on there isn't going to be any more of this covering up business. What one knows—we all know. Raise your hands and swear it!"

Obediently four right hands came up.

"If I had known certain angles this thing would never have happened!"

We didn't argue the point with him. He might have been right at that.

"Now the girl is gone! The book is gone! Everything is hay-wire. 'Don't get so breathless,' Pilly cautioned. 'There is one little bright spot. We have a copy of the log book's code.'"

"Which is just a lot of tiny figures—a blind alley."

"But there is a door at the end of that alley, which will reveal the secret if we can find the key," I told him.

Then we explained our discovery that the figures were letters in semaphore, and that the groups of five indicated a five-letter code word in cypher disk.

"All of which doesn't bring Paua back," Larry said hopelessly.

He walked over to the great wide doors and stood looking across those down miles of tumbling water, stretching to the lonely shores of Tarea, which held its secret securely locked. Ghost-ridden Tarea, with its twin peaks, like the fingers of a beckoning hand. Tarea, the accursed, on which no man lived.

Larry's shoulders slumped dejectedly. Paua was gone. She was somewhere out there where wide, wet miles of Pacific tumbled and tossed. Under cover of night a boat had slipped in—probably Livingston's Wanderer—and she had disappeared.

It was that feeling of helplessness, like the paralysis of a dream; the inaction, the futility of action, that was getting us.

Now we couldn't catch a flash of the hours that lay ahead.

Diet and Health

By Logan Clendening, M. D., Author of "The Human Body"

August Fifteenth is the date, but whoever is interested had better be getting ready for it now. The opening of the American hay fever season is usually prompt and according to schedule.

The number of people in the United States who are affected can only be determined by guess work or calculation, but it is probably not fewer than one in ten. In the Mississippi valley, including the valleys of the Ohio and Missouri, the home of the ragweed, it must be higher than that. The ragweed in these regions is extremely abundant, and it gives more people hay fever in a more virulent form than any other plant. The Mississippi valley, then, its favorite habitat, is the plague spot of the world for hay fever.

Something like 12 to 20 million people, therefore, are more or less incapacitated during the last two weeks of August and all of September from this disease, in the United States alone every year. The amount of their incapacity ranges from mild discomfort to complete prostration. For most of them there is a considerable economic loss.

In view of such a situation, methods of control of the disease are extremely important. Methods of treatment are practically useless. Of methods of prevention there are three with all possibilities of success.

First, is the vaccine treatment.

using a solution of the ragweed pollen for the vaccine. To be successful the treatment must be begun early. Most practitioners who have handled such cases believe the injections should be begun six to 12 weeks before the attack is expected. In some cases the treatment is completely successful. In others there is no benefit obtained whatever.

The second method is the use of pollen filters in the bedroom. If economically feasible also in the room inhabited in the daytime—office or house. These filters fit into any window. If the room is otherwise kept closed they act efficiently in practically every case. Their cost is no more than the charge ordinarily made for a course of vaccines. Employers who have many employees with hay fever would probably profit by installing such filters in their offices.

The third method of prevention is the destruction of ragweed plants early in the season. If city departments of health in neighboring cities would agree among themselves to cut all weeds in vacant lots, along fences and railroad tracks, from July 1 to August 15, it would undoubtedly mitigate this nuisance considerably.

Editor's Note: Four pamphlets and four articles by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin for each pamphlet and two cents in coin for each article, with a self-addressed, stamped envelope, to Dr. Logan Clendening in care of this paper, or Central Press Association, 1435 East Twelfth street, Cleveland, O. The pamphlets are: "Reducing Weight," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," and "Feminine Hygiene." The articles are "Normal Diet," "Diet of the Expectant Mother," "Tuberculosis" and "The Atonic Abdominal Wall."

My New York

By James Ansell

NEW YORK.—Marginalia of a Madhattanite:

Curious, how much about a New Yorker's life you can deduce from noting the hours at which his lights flick off at night. . . . Across from me as I write I can see 10 o'clock windows, and midnight windows and 3 o'clock in the morning windows. . . . An elderly couple just opposite, never goes to bed before 2 a. m.—except on Saturday nights, when they must prepare for early mass with sufficient rest.

Radio, always on the alert for new sound effects, ought to delve into the possibilities of steamboat sirens. . . . Their low, long, melancholy growl is for me one of the most moving sounds on earth. . . . Full of a rich tired life, and of excitement, and of the promise of outlandish ports visited before and to be visited again. . . . For sheer, stark terror, though, nothing tops the shrill shriek of the police riot cars. . . . Fire engine bells always have sounded in these cars a little stagey.

I find myself writing and thinking about boats. . . . Some day soon I'll pop off aboard one myself. . . . Voyages suffer from one crying disadvantage. . . . They require a certain amount of planning, when the ideal way to set out across the water would be, for me, on half an hour's notice. . . . A walk beside the wharves, a sudden impulse, and whist!—you're away, in a maelstrom of tug-boat whistles and massed faces, joyous and sad, on the pier. . . . But, practical affairs being practical affairs, you can't go that way unless you're a multimillionaire, a stowaway or a marine.

New Generation

That recent "Ye Old Minstrel Show" at the Fifth Avenue Playhouse occasioned scores of small boys in the neighborhood to inquire what a minstrel was. . . . Will their descendants ever be as uncertain about the meaning of the crooner?

Literary teas, flung by publishers or agents, have temporarily almost disappeared from the Manhattan scene. . . . Several are scheduled for coming weeks, but last year this time the town fluttered with them. . . . The new name for bookish gatherings: "conferences"—with only a few scribblers invited to talk, of all things, of business and concrete plans.

Nicholas Murray Butler fits a silk hat better than any man I can call to mind. . . . Jimmy Sava is the wildest comedian on the stage, and the most deserving of the term "fey." . . . It's true that Libby Holman's singing fame was the direct result of an operation on her tonsils which produced a unique tone.

Mixing Pen and Make-up

Tom Mix has turned actor. . . . His book, "Sagebrush Philosophy," will be on the stands by the time you read this. . . . Jean Bowden, a well-known figure among professional ice skaters, was once a Coney Island beauty queen. The "tabloid revue" idea for movie houses is spreading, making necessary a sort of "second serial rights" clause in muscled carpenter's contracts.

Wonder whether I should revive that "What Few New Yorkers Know" type of column. . . . I'm stacking up a pile of curious facts about the town, after days of digging. . . . Ought to be someone striking away of presenting this material; but there ought to be some more striking way of columnizing than ending sentences with dots. . . . A college history professor once told my class: "Don't try to be astonishing. Try to be competent, and that's astonishing enough to last me a term."

Learned Advice

A large shoe manufacturer called in a committee of college graduates to pick styles for the coming year. . . . Some of the selections were a bit wild but the firm is going ahead with production along the line indicated. . . . Which reminds me that three large manufacturers of fine automobiles choose upholstery fabrics by having "feelers" sent to society women.

The only marathon craze which has made money consistently for nearly a decade is the dance stunt. . . . Pie-eating and flagpole sitting, apparently more amusing and spectacular, fell by the wayside. . . . The fruit juice drinks through the Mazda Belt here are uniformly a nickel this summer.

But I Like It

A Columbus, O., lady writes: "I see you are getting dottier and dottier." . . . Which leaves me somewhat dashed. . . . Sidney Franklin, the Brooklyn boy, who taught Spaniards how to throw the bull, has loaned his collection of colorful capes and ring equipment to a

Good looks

Sparkling eyes and a smooth complexion depend on good health. The beautiful woman guards against constipation. She knows this condition can cause headaches, yellow skin, dull eyes, pimples, premature aging.

Protect yourself from constipation by eating a delicious cereal. Tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and Vitamin B to tone the intestinal tract. In addition, ALL-BRAN furnishes blood-building iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is similar to that of lettuce. Within the body, it forms a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes. How much safer than pills and drugs—so often habit-forming.

Two tablespoons daily—in serious cases, with every meal—will correct most types of constipation. If your trouble is not relieved in this way, see your doctor.

Serve as a cereal, with milk or cream, or use in cooking. At all grocers. In the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Baby Bees Will Be Kept
With Mothers While Feeding

Fred Council is starting 27 head of Hereford calves on creep feed Wednesday. Mr. Council said the calves are from two to four months old. They will be allowed to run with their mothers on pasture and will have access to a creep feeder. A mixture of ground corn and cottonseed meal will be kept in the feeder at the beginning. As the calves begin eating larger amounts of the feed, a balanced ration will be maintained.

Mr. Council plans to finish the calves about the time they will be weaned from their mothers. He will also keep accurate records of feed given them as well as the gain in weight of the animals.

Mr. Council said Tuesday he will conduct the feeding experiment under the direction of County Agent A. L. Edmiston.

With Lamar
Home Demonstration Clubs

Plans for the Women's Home Demonstration clubs annual county encampment Thursday and Friday, July 7-8, were discussed at Saturday's called meeting of the county council, and committees were appointed to assist the new demonstration agent, Miss Beulah Blackwell, who will succeed Miss Lida Cooper, in making the arrangements.

The members voted to bring food ready prepared for the first day of the encampment and to bring raw materials to be cooked on the following day, the foods committee to arrange a menu and prorate the articles needed being: Mrs. W. T. Lewis, Hearon; Mrs. E. C. Hindman, Howland; Mrs. J. W. Merritt, Pattonville; Mrs. E. J. Hunter and Mrs. Mary Barnett, Roxton.

The wardrobe contest demonstrators should send in their records of expense and the stories of how they carried out the requirements in the contest should be sent to the home demonstration agent's office several days in advance of the encampment in order to give time for scoring them.

Mrs. Dora R. Barnes, state clothing specialist for the extension service department, will be present the first day of the encampment, when the garments will be scored. Prize winners will be announced afterward.

Powderly Teacher Returns. POWDERLY, June 7.—Miss Thelma Mullens, who has been teaching at Blue Grove, has returned home.

Glory Payne has been ill with measles but is improving.

Mrs. M. L. Mullens who has been ill several weeks is improving.

Mr. and Mrs. John Neighbors of Hugo visited here Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Chism who have been teaching at Colorado, Texas, are here for the summer vacation.

Mrs. Marion Hambro and baby

Each club president will be notified in advance of the articles of food and the amount for which her club is to be responsible, in order that the second day's menu will be complete. All articles must be brought to the Woman's Building at Lamar fair grounds before the morning of the second day of the camp so there will be no delay or confusion in preparing the meals.

Each woman attending will be expected to bring her own knife, fork and spoon, for use during the camp.

This is the camp committee which will see that light globes are in place, faucets placed on the water connections and similar arrangements made before the camp opens: Mrs. R. C. Hodges, Adams; Mrs. J. C. Rogers, Sylvan; Mrs. Jess Bridges, Hearon; Mrs. Rufus Watson, Howland; Mrs. Booker McGee, Adams.

The entertainment committee is composed of Mrs. J. A. Lewis, Hearon; Mrs. W. S. Price, Glory; Mrs. Roy Echols, Marvin; Mrs. Pete Maddox, Byrdtown; Mrs. Claude Duncan, Howland; Mrs. J. W. Peace, Faught.

It was announced that there will be no butter judging contest this year for the women's clubs, so this feature will be omitted from the encampment program.

The dress contest, in which garments made by the foundation patterns fashioned by the members of Colorado, Texas, are visiting relatives here.

J. W. Chism is improving.

AS WE COME INTO COURT ON THE 8TH DAY, WE STILL FIND ATTORNEY WALL ADAMS GRILLING HIS NAMESAKE

Q: MR. ADAMS, IT HAS BEEN STATED HERE IN COURT THAT ROCKNEY FLINT RETURNED TO YOU THE MONEY STOLEN ON THE NIGHT OF MARCH 25TH. IS THAT TRUE?

A: YES.

Q: HE DIDN'T GIVE THIS MONEY BECAUSE HE FELT OBLIGATED IN ANY WAY?

A: I DON'T THINK SO.

Q: DON'T YOU THINK IT'S RATHER UN-GRATEFUL, UNFAIR AND EVEN MALICIOUS FOR THE PROSECUTION TO PRESENT THIS EVIDENCE IN A MANNER SO AS TO CAST SUSPICION ON MR. FLINT?

New Orleans Cotton.
 NEW ORLEANS, June 7. (AP)—Cotton was rather quiet Tuesday with prices fairly steady but without special trend. The market closed steady at net gains for the day of 2 to 3 points. The market opened very steady owing to Liverpool cables coming in 2 to 4 penny points better than due. Private cables stated there was local buying and covering by shorts. Manchester cable the market there was unsettled and the market was unchanged to 1 penny point down.

opening advance in cotton was followed by reaction during trading under liquidation and some scattered selling promoted by favorable weather reports and the action of the stock market. After selling up to 2.10 at the start, July eased off to 2.10 or 2 points net lower, but steadied in late trading on covering and closed at 2.14. The general market closed steady at net advances of 2 to 4 points.

Overnight reports from Washington disposing of the tax bill uncertainties were considered favorable and may have helped the opening tone of the market. They evidently failed to stimulate much buying in view of the stock market reports and belief that the crop was making good progress probably brought in some selling.

New York Stocks
 NEW YORK, June 7. (AP)—Interest in stocks lagged Tuesday and the market sold off closing on a base that represented a cancellation of not quite half last week's advance.

It was a leisurely decline and Wall Street still exhibited its technical finding more significant the strong undertone of bonds and the dollar's ability to improve in terms of foreign monies. European gold currencies were especially weak in the late afternoon, French franc and Dutch guilder, particularly retreating to levels which would hardly encourage further shipments of metal.

Weak spots generally proved to be in shares which had been vulnerable just prior to the recent recovery, namely, utilities, tobacco and food.

American Tobacco "B" and Liggett and Myers "B" were down approximately 3 points. Drug, American Telephone, Macy, General Foods, Delaware and Hudson, Norfolk and Western, First National Stores and a few preferred lost about 2 or more.

Chicago Grain.
 CHICAGO, June 7. (AP)—Faced by prospects of bumper crops of spring wheat in Canada and the United States, wheat values Tuesday again outdid season low price records.

Retrograde action of securities counted also as a bearish influence on grains. Another weakening factor was evidence that although Canadian wheat export business had reached a huge total, 7,000,000 to 10,000,000 bushels in the last few days, demand abroad for United States was reduced nearly to zero. Wheat closed nervous 3-4 to 1-2 under Monday's finish, corn 1-4 to 3-4, oats 1-3 to 1-2 down, and provisions varying from 7 cents decline to a rise of 10 cents.

Closing indemnities, wheat, July 20 1-2 to 3-4, 22 3-4 to 1-2; Sept. 22 3-4 to 1-2, 24 3-4 to 1-2; Dec. 22 3-4 to 1-2, 24 3-4 to 1-2, 26 3-4 to 1-2, 28 3-4 to 1-2, 30 3-4 to 1-2, 31 3-4 to 1-2, 32 3-4
